DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's amendment filed 4/21/06 has been fully considered and entered. Claims 1 and 2 have been canceled and new claim 3 has been added. Applicant's cancellation of claims 1 and 2 renders moot the anticipation rejections set forth in sections 4-6 of the last Office Action dated 04/06/05. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground (s) of rejections set forth herein below.

Specification

2. The specification filed 9/21/05 is objected to under 35 U.S.C. 132(a) because it introduces new matter into the disclosure. 35 U.S.C. 132(a) states that no amendment shall introduce new matter into the disclosure of the invention. The added material, which is not supported by the original disclosure, is as follows: Applicant's brief summary of the invention and detailed description is considered all new matter with respect to the originally filed specification. Specific examples include the description of the "split microfiber" on page 5 of Applicant's specification under the heading of the brief summary of the invention. Applicant's mouse pad was not originally disclosed as a "split microfiber" cloth having over 90,000 fibers per square inch made from super thin .13 denier microfibers woven into dense wedge shaped strands.

Applicant is required to cancel the new matter in the reply to this Office Action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. Specifically, Applicant has no original support for the limitations of a “surface composed of split microfiber cloth with over 90,000 fibers per square inch”.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Krause et al., US 6,560,811 and/or Krause, US 6,467,980 in view of Lin, EP 0 455 927 A1.

The patents issued to Krause et al., teach a wiping cloth of an ultra fine weave of microfibers having over 100,000 and 220,000 microfibers per square inch (claim 11, Krause ‘811 and claim 4, Krause ‘980). The patents issued to Krause et al., fail to teach the limitation of split microfibers, however, such fibers are known in the art and used to produce woven fabrics. For example, the published EP application teaches splittable conjugated microfibers suitable for weaving (abstract). The EP disclosure teaches forming fabrics such as wiping cloths (page 3, 26-30). The EP disclosure teaches providing fabrics with a soft surface touch or peach skin feel (page 2, 10-15 and page 3, 10-13).

Therefore, motivated to provide a wiping cloth with a soft surface touch, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to form the wiping cloths of Krause et al., with the splittable conjugated fibers disclosed in the EP disclosure.

With regard to the limitations pertaining to the use as a mouse pad, said limitation constitutes an intended use limitations and thus are not given patentable weight if it can be shown that the prior art meets the chemical and structural limitations set forth. A recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. See In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). In the instant case, since the structural features of a split microfiber cloth having over 90,000 fibers per square inch are met by the combination of prior art, there is nothing on record to evidence that that the woven cloth provided by the combination of prior art could not function in the intended capacity of a mouse pad.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
